until formal contracts are exchanged. E. FORM 1. The general rule is that contracts can be made informally; most contracts can be formed orally, and in some cases, no oral or written communication at all is needed. Thus, an informal exchange of promises can still be as binding and legally valid as a written contract.

Six Principles of Contract Law » Peaceful Path to Settlement

The principles of contract law generally require the parties to a contract to include all the terms and considerations within the "four corners" of the document. Contracts are not required to be in writing, but, when they are, courts will generally not consider external factors when interpreting the contract itself. Instead, the courts will only look to what was included within the written
